Dear Dean Levi:

I appreciate your good letter of November 11, and wish to confirm that I will be at the Law Alumni Dinner on November 30. As soon as my plans are worked out, I shall let you know the time of my arrival, and in any event, I believe I will arrive in time so as to join a gathering of the law students if they so desire.

I appreciate the information you have given me about the Law School. Of course from having practiced law in New York for some 25 years, I know of its splended record and achievements and look forward to being with you.

I would appreciate advice on a couple of points. As I told Glen Lloyd, I propose to speak from notes rather than from a prepared manuscript and as I am not anxious for publicity, I had not proposed to give out any text of my talk to the press. Is this satisfactory? Also kindly let me know whether the speaker should wear a dinner coat or a business suit.

Looking forward to seeing you on the 20th, I remain

Faithfully yours,
